Abstract (en)

[origin: WO0243523A1] The invention concerns an accessory used for carrying a mobile telephone to simplify managing the telephone when moving about. The invention is characterised in that it consists in fixing said accessory around the hand, at the root of the thumb and beneath the joints of the other fingers, so that the apparatus is obliquely positioned in the palm. It consists of two straps: one enclosing the hand (1) and the other enclosing the apparatus (2) assembled in variable ways. Said accessory, which does not exist yet, can provide, through its practical and security features, a novel business opportunity to leathercraft, clothing and accessory manufacturers.
