Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1408284A1] A conduit (16), fitted into the aperture (12) of an external wall (14), has an internal end connected to a boiler (10) and an open external end fitted with a cup-like end portion (20). The end portion deflects expelled water from the external end towards the external surface of the wall. An independent claim is also included for a method of installing a fluid expeller.
