Abstract (en)

[origin: WO0204726A1] Method for producing tubular knitwear items (1) such as panties, brassieres, bras, teddies, swimsuits, dresses and the like, provided with specific knitted zones (CA) automatically obtained, said areas having shaping, containing, propping and anatomically supporting functions. The invention co-ordinates the appropriate selection of needles (A) according to the jacquard design and to the operating cycle of the knitting machine, thus obtaining for specific fabric zones (CA) and needles (A) the partial and temporary stop of the fabric-building process for groups of needles (A) variously alternated with other needles (A) still involved in the fabric-building process.
