Abstract (en)

A fastening device particularly usable in sports shoes (1) includes a band (7), a first fixed end (8) of which is associated with a ring (10) that cooperates with the second movable end (9) of the band in order to guide it. A first means (14) is rotatably associated with the ring, which acts as a guide for the second movable end of the band, and is adapted to limit the friction between the band and the ring. There is also a second (15) means for increasing friction with the band. <IMAGE>
