Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1440915A1] The container for the storing and delivery of piece material has circumferential boundary walls and a bottom made from a rigid and especially metal material such as steel. The bottom tapers from the outer circumferential wall regions in funnel form or in truncated pyramid form towards the center (6). The circumferential walls are manufactured at least partially from a flexible material. A delivery device (7) in the form of screw and/or suction element is located in the region of the recessed center of the bottom which represents a sump.
