Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1465226A1] The drive arrangement has a rod (2) for transferring movement from a drive device (3) to a movement element (1). The rod has an elbow lever that can be placed in latched and released states and a triggering device on the lever for releasing it from the latched state into the released state. The movement element is the lever of a switch and the installation device is a remote drive for a power breaker. An independent claim is also included for the following: (a) an installation device with a drive arrangement (b) and a method of driving a movement element of an installation device.
