Abstract (en)
[origin: WO03062031A2] The invention relates to a collapsible transport vehicle comprising a load-receiving surface and at least one pair of running wheels. In order to create a transport vehicle that can be assembled and collapsed in a simple manner requiring only a few manipulations and that has a relatively small size in a collapsed position, the running wheels (5) are arranged on wheel suspensions (4) which are pivotally connected to one side of the load-receiving surface (2), and the load-receiving surface (2) is provided with at least one joint (3), by means of which said load-receiving surface can be collapsed.
