Abstract (en)

The gripper has two jaws (28,29) fitted to a casing (27) and movable with respect to each other. The jaws have respective gripping heads (44,45) between which to grip a portion of an opening device (2). The gripping heads define between them a seat which engages the portion of the opening device interferentially when the gripper is moved in a pickup direction. A spring forces the jaws into a maximum approach position of the gripping heads.
