Abstract (en)

[origin: WO03067543A2] Aspects for remotely controlling audio/visual A/V devices with a personal computer PC are described. The aspects include providing connection hardware for connecting a plurality of A/V devices to a PC. A remote control device with selectable buttons is provided for transmitting data signals wirelessly to the connection hardware. The plurality of A/V devices are controlled according to the data signals from button selections on the remote control device. Through the present invention, a multi-function wireless remote is disclosed which allows for full command of a plurality of A/V devices in a PC, such as a DVD player, TV receiver, Digital Video Recorder DVR, and electronic programming guide. In this manner, PC users are ensured of a simplified and intuitive interactive PC/video experience.
