Abstract (en)
A spindle is provided for use with handles for windows or doors, comprising first spindle means (10), and second spindle means (11) which can be assembled with the first spindle means (10) to provide an elongate spindle, the position of the spindle means (10, 11) being adjustable with respect to one another to enable the length of the spindle to be pre-selected, the spindle assembly being such that when the spindle assembly is connected to handle means (14) the pre-selected spindle length becomes fixed.
