Abstract (en)
[origin: WO03080463A1] The invention concerns a product dispensing device (1) comprising a applicator mounted mobile relative to a housing (6) between a retracted closure position and an extended product dispensing position, further including elastic means between the housing (6) and the applicator. The invention is characterized in that the elastic means comprise an elastically deformable and sealed hollow body preventing the passage of any product between the bottom of the housing and the base. The invention also concerns a container equipped therewith.
