Abstract (en)
[origin: FR2858394A1] The oven has a ventilator (6) that is placed inside, and louvered openings that are formed on a lateral wall (34) for allowing the passage of fresh air. The louvered openings are formed close to the back side (26) and are streamlined in order to allow the input of air coming from the front side (20). The openings are formed such that the air coming from the back side is obstructed. An independent claim is also included for an assembly formed by an oven.
