Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1516564A2] A seat which converts into a recliner has an additional cushion (20) which pulls out from under the fixed seat (18) supported on rollers (42) and is raised to the same height as the fixed seat by folding support levers. In the raised position a second set of rollers supports the extension with rollers set to move the extension sideways. This enables the user to fill gaps with adjacent seats, e.g. as part of a corner seating system.
