Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1522239A1] Tablecloth (16) has first weakening lines (30, 36) so that edge regions (18, 20) of the tablecloth can be folded along the weakening lines. These first weakening lines are arranged so that when the edge regions of the tablecloth are folded the outer side edges of the tabletop are covered by the edge regions. The tablecloth also comprises second weakening lines (30.1, 36.1) in its folding edge regions. When the edge regions are folded, at least two of the second weakening lines define an inner folding region in a corner region (40) of the tablecloth. Preferred Features: The tablecloth is made of paper with a high cellulose content or a paper-containing material used in the production of shoe inner soles.
