Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2004011217A1] The invention relates to a device for producing moulded bricks, said device comprising a moulding frame and a moulding insert. Relief arrangements are arranged in relation to the moulding insert and moulding frame in such a way that they can be displaced between the same. Said relief arrangements are displaceably mounted in the moulding frame and engage in complementary relief arrangements of the moulding insert, preferably being joined therewith by an elastic material.
