Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1536194A1] The ice maker comprises a container (3) for filling with water and provided with partition walls (4) mounted inside the container directly adjoining one another and able to move relative to each other. The partitions have several indentations (6) to produce small ice cubes. The partitions are elastically deformable and preferably run vertically in the container. The partitions can be removed from the container. The container has a watertight bag.
