Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2004011683A1] It refers to improvements in drums used for the treatment of skins, leathers and like, which concern the shape and relative location of the shelves provided in such drums; said modification being that these shelves are located radially, are longer than those known so far, and have an additional tilted table or curved element attached to them in their ends with a certain angle, or a bifurcation, forming a spoon-like shape, in the first two cases and the shape of a Y in the third.
