Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2004025495A1] An apparatus, method and program product allow a user (100) who is authenticated (84) in one application to enroll in a different application (95) without having to accomplish conventional enrollment processes. The enrollment credential of the first application (84) is automatically transferred to the second application (95) as the new or updated enrollment credential for the second application (95).
