Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2004006701A1] A personal protection device (10) comprises a resilient structure (12) which, in use, surrounds a bodypart of the user. The energy from an impact by a first surface is thus transmitted through the structure (12) from the impact side to the other side(s) and dissipated to an external second surface with which the structure (12) is in contact.
