Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2004046945A1] &sect; user-created life portal for viewing and accessing content on the Internet and methods of implementing a life portal (102) are described. The platform, referred to as a life portal (102), is configured by the user to display only content that is of interest to the user, thereby reflecting the personality and life of the user. The content displayed in a life portal (102) is retrieved from websites and is not limited to sites licensed or maintained by the life portal service provider. Content is displayed as a view (110) or a magazine. Views (110) are stored in life pages (104). A content in a life portal (102) is specifically tailored to meet target interests and preferences of the user and is designed to exclude content not of direct interest to the user.
