Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1577473A1] Door with a braking stopper has a braking element arranged near to the bottom of the door. The braking element is moved by an actuator element from a retracted position when the door is closed to an extended position when the door is opened. Movement of the door activates the actuator. The door brake (3) is extended downwards from the door, by means of a pulling cable (6) anchored in the door frame, towards the ground to lock the door in an open position.
