Abstract (en)
A reflective harness to be used by any person using a public thoroughfare, such as a pedestrian, cyclist, sportsperson, professional or other person who uses or remains in the thoroughfare, is described. The harness includes elements capable of being positioned on the front and back of the body of the user, carried out by way of a back piece, strap portions and belt portions produced with the incorporation of reflective material. Preferably, the back piece is shaped in a triangular or other design that simulates a danger sign. For their part, the belt portions incorporate sections made of elastic material, as well as means of quick attachment at their ends, such as straps made of Velcro or similar. <IMAGE>
