Abstract (en)

The mat has a supporting mat (2) including a surface on which tile-positioning units (3, 3a, 3b) are arranged in equal distances. The tile-positioning units define a specific distance between adjacent tiles and are designed as laying cruxes. The supporting mat is perforated or saturated with tile adhesives and is formed from plastic or fiber-reinforced plastic. Fastening units are formed at the supporting mat. An independent claim is also included for a method of laying tiles.
