Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2004109020A1] Disclosed is a sanitary connecting and draining device that is to be mounted inside a basin (1), e.g. a wash basin, bidet, or kitchen sink, and comprises an inlet (2) via which water can be delivered to the sanitary connecting and draining device and can then be fed into the basin (1), and a drain (3) for water fed into the basin (1), said drain (3) being integrated into the sanitary connecting and draining device. The inventive connecting and draining device makes it possible to provide the basin (1) with only one port which is used for fastening the sanitary connecting and draining device and as a drain for the basin (1).
