Abstract (en)

The procedure comprises the supply of ink to a container with deformable walls; arranging the container packaging in a dispensing system, comprising a tank wherein doses of ink are poured; supplying the ink in a container with deformable walls, with means for opening the packaging; holding the packaging, either full or partly full, in the dosification system; opening the packaging via the opening means, determining an opening; and exerting pressure, by pressing and flattening means, against the packaging walls, against said opening. The combined compression action pushes the ink contained in the packaging, due to possibility of deforming the walls of the packaging, by the flattening thereof, against the opening, through which the ink exits.
