Abstract (en)

The washing brush comprises a main body having an inlet connectable to a water supply source and an outlet from which a mixture of water and liquid detergent exits externally of the brush. The body is provided with a reservoir for containing a liquid detergent, having a bottom affording at least a hole. Externally of the main body there is a plurality of bristles for removing the dirt, moved by means for transmitting motion. The brush is provided with integral means for mechanically removing the liquid detergent remaining at the base of the at least a hole.
