Abstract (en)

The packing container is for the stacking on a fluid packaging unit (2) assembled from several bottles (6) with spaces (12) in between. The packing container has a support plate (7) from which project several chambers (4) each of which opens into an opening in the support plate. Each chamber with regard to the arrangement on the support plate is adapted to the position of the bottles adjacent to the intermediate chambers and has a form which fits into the respective space in such a way that each chamber in the state of the packing container seated on the packaging unit is located at least partially between the bottles. An independent claim is included for a fluid packaging unit with the aforesaid packing container.
