Abstract (en)

An image forming device, a host device connected to the image forming device, an image forming system, and a controlling method thereof. The image forming device includes a customer replaceable unit memory (CRUM) provided to a recording material storage medium to store latest version information of firmware of the image forming device, and a controller to collect present version information of the firmware of the image forming device and to provide an old version notification message if the present version information of the firmware of the image forming device is old compared to the latest version information. Accordingly, a user can update the firmware or software conveniently.
