Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1673997A1] The device has a gripping unit (50) defining a housing (47) for a product applicator unit. The unit (50) is connected to a support (40) by an elastically deformable transversal wall (60) in a manner that the support is displaced with respect to the gripping unit, when a force is exerted on the applicator unit. The support is moved to its initial position, when the force is not exerted. An independent claim is also included for a method for applying a product on a surface to be treated.
