Abstract (en)

The cushioning device has a framework and a firm base having cushions, which are removably supported at the framework. The base has a valve (4) fastened, which is opened when supporting the cushion at the framework (1) for a pressure balance between the cushion interior (5) and cushion exterior, and when removing the cushion (3) from the framework (1), is closed. The valve (4) has a mobile valve body (6), which is linked up into the closing position and is moved when presenting the cushion (3) on the frameworks against pre-loading into the opening position.
