Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2005058121A1] The aim of the invention is to provide a dish washing machine which enables, even when high raw water hardnesses exist, combined products to be easily used while having a good and effective drying rate. To this end, the invention provides that a portion of the degree of softening required for the existing raw water hardness can be furnished by the softening system serving to fill the dishwashing machine with raw water.
