Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1702531A2] The device has an applying part with a container (3) to contain a fluid product (P), and an application unit (12) mounted at an end of a rod (8) integrated to the container during use. The part is placed on a transparent container (5) receiving a certain quantity of the product. The rod has inner channels (9) communicating with the container (3) to supply the product to the unit (12). A sheath (15) integrated to the container (3) during use surrounds the rod partially by sparing a space with the rod. The channels open in the space through openings (18) above which openings (20) are placed.
