Abstract (en)

The method involves simultaneously positioning frames carried by a conveyor (2) and installing end pieces (3) on slats (4) carried by a conveyor (5). The slats with the end pieces are installed on side rails (1a, 1b) of the frames. The installation of the slats is a repetitive sequence of a relative step by step displacement of the frames with respect to an installation place of the slats. The sequence is repeated slat by slat until the installation of all the slats of the frame. The step by step displacement is a programmed displacement according to each frame and slats installation phase.
