Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1723942A1] The male component (40) has a push-in slide component (43). This runs in the direction of insertion. It is inserted by sliding into a recess in the female component (10). The recess tapers in the direction of insertion and/or is dovetailed. The direction of insertion is at right angles to the axis of connection between the two components. The crutches are held at an angle after connection, forming an X-configuration.
