Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2006002919A1] The invention relates to a telescoping handle for household utensils, such as spray mops, having an internal outer tube (5) that can be inserted in an external outer tube (6). The internal outer tube (5) can be fixed in different positions in relation to the external outer tube (6). An actuation mechanism (8, 9, 12) is located in the outer tubes (5, 6). When the length of the unit consisting of the internal outer tube (5) and the external outer tube (6) is changed, the length of the actuation mechanism (8, 9, 12) is changed by the same length.
