Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1772587A2] The slatted panel for shading a building opening has vertically extending slats (3) defining a light reflective surface (6). The reflective surface can define a saw tooth form to reflect light from all incident angles. The light reflective surface can extend over the full height of the slats. The saw tooth formations are arranged vertically in the installed position of the panel. Claims include individual slats for the panel.
