Abstract (en)

This invention relates to a collapsible airer, and in particular to a free-standing collapsible airer comprising a column, a number of arms and at least three legs. The legs are movable relative to the column between a collapsed position in which they are substantially parallel to the column and an extended position in which they are at an angle to the column and can together support the column. The arms are movable relative to the column between a collapsed position in which they are substantially parallel to the column and an extended position in which they are at an angle to the column and can support articles being aired. The arms move towards the legs as the arms are collapsed so as to reduce the volume occupied by the airer in its collapsed state.
