Abstract (en)
[origin: US2008011880A1] The invention relates to a shower head that can be used, for example, as a hand-held shower attachment. The shower head contains an aerating device that is capable of supplying all jet outlet elements (16) of the jet disc (18) with aerated water. The air required for this is aspirated at a number of locations and mixed with the water with the aid of a number of nozzles (14) inside the shower head. The aerated water already present inside at least one chamber (17) leaves this chamber and then passes through the jet outlet elements (16) into the open.
