Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1830132A2] The method involves selecting information, which are displayed on a display (2) by rotation and swiveling of an operating body (3), and selecting a function symbolized by the information by activating the operating body. The function is selected by touching the display at a point, at which the information is displayed. An operation mode is selected by the rotation and swiveling of the operating body and the subsequent activation of the operating body in a hierarchical level. An independent claim is also included for an operation- and display system for a domestic furnace.
