Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2006074762A1] The invention relates to a seating and/or reclining piece of furniture, in particular, an armchair (2), comprising at least one first and one second support piece (10, 16), whereby the first support piece (10) and the second support piece (16) are connected to each other by means of at least one connector element and may be adjusted relative to each other by means of an electric motor actuator. According to the invention, the connector element, or at least one of the connector elements, comprises a channel (39), for housing power supply and /or control lines (40, 42), for the power supply and/or control of the electric motor actuator means. Said piece of furniture has a corresponding visual embodiment. The power supply and control lines (40, 42) are thus protected against damage.
