Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1847194A1] The device is either assembled of several individual elements (4) or available as a set of elements (4) attached to the inner surface of a sock. Each of the individual elements (4) is slightly padded and can be joined to the tip of every toe (3) with self adhesive outer ends. The pad (4) is stuck to the upper surface of the toe (3), guided around the tip and stuck again to the lower surface. The foot (1) is inserted into the selected shoe (2). A signal is transmitted from a sensor when the toes (3) get in contact with the inner side of the front cap.
