Abstract (en)

[origin: EP1873074A1] The device (100) has complementary closing elements (160, 170) e.g. hooks, a male element (110) provided with a projection (111) having an endless right round section, and a female element defining a complementary curved receiving bassinet or concave throat (121), where the device is operated by a slide. The male element and the female element are connected to support shells (112, 122) that are associated to each other by feet (113, 123), where the female element has a variable thickness wall.
