Abstract (en)

The present patent mentions an exterior furniture part that simultaneously combines the functions of table and chair, the related furniture part possesses an articulated mechanism that allows the transformation of a chair in a joined table with two chairs, through a rotation system of the parts. The related furniture part, in the compact position, assumes the figure of a chair with inclined leans, with an angle of about 118° and two lateral supports, to place the arms. The articulated mechanism of the related part allows that the cited chair transforms into a joined table with two chairs, by sliding the back of the chair (initial position), that causes the simultaneous displacement of the armchairs, as well as part of the seat (initial position) until the final position is reached. Of the related movement results a transformation of the back of the chair (initial position) in a top of the table (final position); on the other hand, the seat of the chair (initial position) is putrefied in two parts that go to form the two seats connected to the table (final position).
