Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2006118889A1] Methods of detecting forgeries and/or preventing forgery distribution are provided. The methods include providing a surface associated with an article; and providing a composition on the surface. The composition includes a chemiluminescent substance. The method further includes subjecting the article to a triggering source to elicit a chemiluminescent signal; and identifying unique information contained in the signal. The unique information is associated with the authentic article.
