Abstract (en)

[origin: DE102006031184A1] To form a folded paper handkerchief (1), the paper blank (2) is folded along two longitudinal fold lines (3,4). The fold lines are reduced to one-third of their original length giving an intermediate product (7) with a thickness of three folds. The intermediate product is folded along lateral fold lines (5,6) for a final folded handkerchief with the lateral lines one-third of their original length.
