[origin: EP1897524A1] To potentiate liquids, especially for homeopathic preparations, the liquid to be processed is fed through an opening (5) into a vessel (1) and a diluting fluid is injected (2) into the vessel. Part of the mixture is extracted by suction through the outlet (3). Further diluting fluid is injected and part of the mixture extracted repeatedly until the remaining mixture in the vessel is of the required strength.
