Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2007009570A2] Disclosed is a packaging for condoms, comprising a strip-shaped thermoformed part composed of a film with at least one row of thermoformed cavities which is disposed in the main direction of extension of the thermoformed part. Said cavities are provided with holes on one side of the thermoformed part in order to accommodate condoms. The packaging further comprises a strip-shaped covering film which covers the thermoformed part on the side of the holes and is sealed at least with the edge region of the holes, tearable perforations that are arranged between adjacent cavities, perpendicular to the main direction of extension of the combined thermoformed part and covering film, at least two overlapping sections of said combination, and joining means between the overlapping sections, said joining means keeping the overlapping sections together in an overlapping relation.
