Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2007010215A1] There is provided a gas containing sac suitable for use in or as a pressure relieving cushion and including an inflatable structure having at least front and rear portions, and support regions for supporting the ischial tuberosities and coccyx of a user, gas in the sac being displaceable so that the action of a user sitting on the sac can cause (i) the front and rear portions to be inflated by displaced gas and (ii) the support regions to be suspended from the sac, wherein the inflated front portion causes the pelvis of the user to rotate rearwards and the inflated rear portion provides support behind the coccyx of the user.
