Abstract (en)

The object of the present invention is a rotating drum of vending machines with money box which allows the user to extract a soluble product contained in a recipient which forms part of a column of these, wherein each of the recipients is partially inserted in that immediately above since the rotating drum separates and collects the bottom recipient of the column from that immediately above it, so that when a turn is made of the money box handle, the recipient falls to a discharge tube of the same so that the user can collect them.
