Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2007026385A1] The invention concerns a device for shredding cigarette butts comprising a box shaped body (11) a shredder duct (19) which extends crossways between the lateral walls of said body, forming a housing (20) to receive a butt to be shredded and having a number of transverse separated slots (24) in parallel, and by a number of slicing blades (25) in line with the slots (24) of said duct, guided in said body and associated with a control pushbutton (28) guided in the top wall of said body. The slicing blades (25) being moved by the control pushbutton from a retracted idle position to a forward active one, and where the slicing blades are pushed through the slots (24) of the shredder duct (19) to shred the butt.
